

Using Coaching to Develop Classroom Practice

January 26th 2018, £140 per person, Novotel Hotel, Bristol BS1 6HY

How can I use coaching principles and skills to support education practitioners to develop their classroom practice?

How can I work with people in a way that deepens learning and leaves them feeling motivated to change?

This workshop will support participants in learning how essential coaching skills and principles can be applied to support education practitioners to develop their classroom practice. Delegates will be taught a non-judgemental approach to lesson observations which enhances the effectiveness of observation as a development tool. Whether the focus is the quality of teaching and learning or the management of classroom behaviour, coaching gives you a robust, effective way of working with others so as to deepen their learning and encourage a commitment to action.

The session will include:

- An overview of core coaching principles and skills.
- A non-judgemental approach to lesson observation that draws on the principles and practices of Motivational Interviewing.
- A video demonstration of the approach being applied to support a teacher to improve student engagement.
- How to use observation feedback to deepen learning, highlight strengths, and facilitate emergence of a motivation to change.
- How coaching can be aligned with school priorities and objectives.

To book a place, please visit the APS website:

www.adamspychologyservices.co.uk

Mark Adams
Educational & Coaching Psychologist
Adams Psychology Services

E: mark@adamspychologyservices.co.uk
W: www.adamspychologyservices.co.uk
T: 07930 432807